The frat bro son of one of New York City's most reviled landlords was recorded harassing an Uber driver in Michigan, calling the man a "minimum wage fa---t" and mocking him for needing to work for a living.

Jake Croman, a member of the University of Michigan's Tau Kappa Epsilon chapter, is now being investigated by his frat for his recorded roadside rage at an Uber driver, according to the Michigan Review.

That means he's following the flagrant footsteps of his father, Steven Croman — a Gotham property magnate who's under investigation by State Attorney General Eric Schneiderman for allegedly forcing rent-stabilized tenants out of their homes.

Several meatheads are seen spewing rage at Zawada, but the worst of it comes from Croman, who whips out his own phone to film the face-off.

“F--- you Artur, you little fa---t f---,” Croman yells.

“You wanna kick me off? Kick me off, you little piece of s---. You’re an Uber driver! Go f---ing drive, you little f---! Minimum wage fa----t! Go f--- yourself!”

University of Michigan frat bro Jake Croman (in black coat) is seen harassing an Uber driver as several friends egg him on.

As Croman storms away, he calls out: "You're working all night! Guess what? I'm gonna sit on my ass and watch TV. F--- you!"

Zawada posted the video on YouTube on March 23, and it's been viewed more than 300,000 times. The driver told The Tab it was the worst treatment he's endured on the job.

"I have lived in this country for 30 years," Zawada said.

"To see someone have complete disregard for another human being — to be abused just because they overloaded the car or they are mean or rude, I have to put a stop for it. I was shocked. I was just in disbelief."

Zawada filed a complaint with Ann Arbor police for alleged verbal harassment.

None of the other oafs in the clip have been named, but the school's newspaper identified Croman as the main aggressor.

The school said in a statement it is "extremely disappointed in the behavior depicted in this video." The dean of students has spoken with Croman and Zawada, according to the school, but no actions against the student have been announced.

Croman could not immediately be reached by the Daily News. But in a prepared statement issued to several media outlets, he claimed Zawada instigated the incident by making "a number
