

VIDEO: MICHIGAN STUDENT CAUGHT CALLING UBER DRIVER A 'MINIMUM WAGE FAGGOT'

By 11W Staff on March 27, 2016 at 2:20p [!\[\]\(919a2cb85b99741a73c0c31a427236a8_img.jpg\) @11w \(https://twitter.com/@11W\)](https://twitter.com/@11W)

Uber abusive rider University of Michigan

According to the University of Michigan, its mission is to develop “leaders and citizens who will challenge the present and enrich the future.”

Tell that to the alleged student and fraternity member at the school who abused an Uber driver last Sunday, March 20, when the driver, Artur Zawada, refused to pick up a passenger who he said was abusive to him in the past.

As Zawada refuses to pick up a group of passengers, one student takes offense and pulls out his phone to begin filming. Zawada, who is filming from the other angle, captures the student saying:

"They don't give two fucks. There are 50 of you and there is one of me here who spends the most money here, you little fuck. Yeah, fuck you Artur, you little faggot fuck. You want to kick me off? Kick me off, you little piece of shit. You're an Uber driver. Go fucking drive, you little fuck. Minimum wage faggot – go fuck yourself. See you later. Go pick up another fuck. You're working all day? Guess what? I'm going to go sit on my ass and watch TV. Fuck you."

Yikes.

In an interview with The Michigan Tab (<http://thetab.com/us/michigan/2016/03/27/video-student-caught-calling-uber-driver-a-minimum-wage-faggot-2351>), Zawada said he knew the customer from previous trips and told the alleged student he wouldn't pick him up after several bad experiences in the past.

"I already told him I would never take him again. He knew that but he didn't cancel the trip," Zawada told The Tab.

"I pulled in I didn't even say anything to the guy, and that happened. So I pulled out my cell phone and recorded him. He should just have cancelled before I came over. They were looking for trouble. They were hoping I would lose my cool."

Per The Tab, Zawada had a meeting with the dean of the university and the dean confirmed the man in the video was a student at Michigan.

It's ridiculous the kind of shit people will pull just to put others down. I'm glad it got caught on tape and that he's facing the consequences of acting like that.

But before anyone starts acting "holier than thou", there are plenty of students I know at Ohio State that I've seen act just like this. Just something to keep in mind.

Uber lets you rate your drivers, but you can also rate passengers if you drive.

Suffice to say, his (presumably) low passenger ranking is going to make it really tough for him to get an Uber in the future.

But it's like Raylan Givens says: "You run into an asshole in the morning, you ran into an asshole. You run into assholes all day, you're probably the asshole." Looks like the kid in this video fits that second description pretty aptly.

I may get blasted for this, and while I think this kid is a total asshole and the video made me cringe, scUM or not, I'm just kinda wondering what place this story has on 11W specifically in terms of relevance? Please realize I'm in no way defending that shitstain and I'm glad he'll get his comeuppance (and hopefully more), this just doesn't seem like something that would be posted here. Kinda Gawkerish I guess?

I'm interested in knowing exactly what UM thinks they can do with this guy...

I am really beginning to get concerned about the "crying to authority" culture we are developing. So a Uber driver has a history of this guy as a passenger being verbally abusive. He doesn't want to pick him up anymore. That should be his privilege and he should be reporting that to Uber. I don't blame him for refusing him service, once upon a time in this country, businesses had "we reserve the right to refuse service to anyone". But with the advent of public accomodation laws that have made it a crime to refuse service, service providers and employees are afraid to protect themselves or their employers by saying no.

So now, we have grown adult men who feel forced to record a customer's tirade, then not only post it online, but go to every authority figure they can think of, including the customer's college he's enrolled in, in an attempt to desperately protect themselves from a lawsuit, criminal charges, civil charges, etc.

Truthfully, this has nothing to do with UM. Uber should have the right to never pick this guy up again. UM should stay out of it, unless he produces this same kind of behavior on campus, in class, etc. As far as I know, he hasn't broken any laws, he's simply a total jerk. His behavior is appalling, but it's not criminal.

In some communities it is a crime to use vulgar and derogatory language towards another person. It's not the worst crime, but it's pretty despicable to be using that language towards someone just trying to earn some extra cash.

BUCKEYEUPNORTH (/USERS/BUCKEYEUPNORTH) 28 MAR 2016, 1:34 PM ▼

And who decides what is vulgar and derogatory? I cannot imagine being charged with a crime because of what a person says, what words they use.

I do know where, however, that exact situation occurs. And I don't want to live there or have it become the standard here. I suggest that if any of our younger members have an opportunity to speak with someone who emigrated here from a totalitarian country, they do so. It is very enlightening to learn exactly what happens under those regimes to those who say 'unapproved' things.

There is a reason our founding fathers wrote the 1st amendment into the Bill of Rights. It was to protect all speech, not just "nice speech" or "agreeable speech".

A few posters are saying the guy is drunk. Not sure where that is coming from, he seems rather lucid to me.

What I am hoping is that this doesn't become the cause du jour for some idiot student council/student conduct "court" at UM to take action against this student. With the administrations blessing.

Why not? Everyone always says that actions have consequences, so whatever happens to him will either make him a better person or reaffirm his privilege.

As much of an A$$ as this guy is, I really hate internet trolls for calling him out on the net. Yes, he is a complete douche, but we all have our moments (granted some not this bad). I don't believe we need to ruin this guys life, and get him kicked out of school over this. He is a drunken immature fool. One day he will mature and realize that he was an a$$ to some people.

Personally, while this guy is a complete douche, I don't feel much better about the people who take the moral high ground and publicly shame him. He is a 20 year old college student for God sakes. Let's remember what it is like people.

I don't necessarily think he should be expelled from school, but people who act like this in public should be publicly identified. If you want to be a vulgar a-hole, don't expect the right to hide in the shadows. Public shame for this kind of behavior is a good thing-people can see your true character-not whatever your PR flack conjured up.

a long long time ago, they used to, instead of throwing folks in a prison, throw them in stockade for being drunken idiots. This was a set of bars that held a guy down and they would display that idiot in public. He'd have to sit there in the stocks for a day or two so everyone in town knew he was an asshole. It shamed people into not being assholes.

The internet is just taking it global.

There is shaming people but the internet has taken it too far. We all do stupid things. We all will do stupid things in the future. The sign of a true man/woman is willingness to own up to their mistakes and ask for forgiveness. The world does not need to continually punish this person for a moment of stupidity when they are 20, which unfortunately is what the Twitter Trolls relish.

It makes me think back a few years ago to the ad exec that tweeted the comment about going to Africa and hoping not to get Aids. She lost her job over that and was pretty much shunned from her industry. I am not condoning what she said, it was in poor taste and offensive, but the internet trolls had a field day with her, they gave her death threats and such, all for a flippant comment. Everyone has their moments, people need to give others the benefit of the doubt sometimes. The Twitter Trolls would rather throw stones at glass houses though.

This does not seem like a moment of stupidity, this is a premeditated verbal attack. This is not once, not twice, not 3 times, but several times this kid targeted this one specific driver.

Since when accountability isn't something we should be educating the younger generation any more??

UPDATE (<http://www.wzzm13.com/news/local/michigan/u-m-student-rant-against-uber-driver-goes-viral/106390018>)

For the TL;DR crowd, basically the kid (through a family spokesperson) is blaming the driver. According to the kid, the driver made anti semetic comments to him first, and thats what provoked the rant. He claims he filed a police report against the driver. The AAPD have no record of such report.

PRICKLY_PETE (/USERS/PRICKLYPETE) 31 MAR 2016, 11:50 AM ▼

If the driver did make a religious slur toward the student, this gives me a different perspective. It doesn't excuse the student's horrible behavior, but it does explain why he was so upset.
